

Kota Kinabalu

(Minimum 2 adults)

The state capital of Sabah is Kota Kinabalu. It is a relatively new town as most of its original buildings were destroyed during World War II.

Only the north-eastern corner of the town remained and is known as 'Old KK' among the locals today. Previously known as Jesselton, Kota Kinabalu is a sprawling, relaxed township of more than 13,000 inhabitants. There is an interesting blend of European, Malay and Chinese shop houses, traditional market places set amongst several high-rise buildings and new shopping areas. Kota Kinabalu has some beautiful views of perpetual blue skies, a coral-studded sea with lovely sunsets and misty mountains in the distance.

See its many places of interests such as the Wisma Tun Mustapha (Sabah Foundation Building), pottery factory, University Malaysia Sabah, its state and city mosque, a Chinese temple and Sabah Museum for the historical and cultural aspects of the indigenous people.
