

Sapa

Located at 1500 metres above sea level, Sapa lies in the mountains northwest of Hanoi. Home to Mount Fansipan - the highest mountain in Indochina - that is covered with clouds year round and can drop below zero degrees at high elevations. The main attraction for tourists are the various ethnic minority group that live in the region – famous for their colourful costumes.

Hanoi to Sapa by Victoria Express Carriage

The 'Victoria Express' is 2 beautifully restored carriages that transport tourists from Vietnam's capital Hanoi, to stunning Sapa town. Linked to the local Tulico/Ratco train, the Victoria carriages offer air conditioning and each sleeping carriage has 6 superior cabins (4 berths) and 2 deluxe cabins (2 berths), all are air-conditioned, wood panelled, with individual reading lights, baggage storage, toilets and oversized windows and a dining car serving Vietnamese and Western food.

The Victoria Express carriages are an extremely popular way to travel to the north of Vietnam so it is strongly advised that bookings be done well in advance. (Tickets can be collected from our office in Hanoi if booked as individual sectors and not part of a tour).
